

Self-Reflection Questions in Creating the Ideal Learning Environment

Are your students given options when it comes to their projects, assignments and group work partners?

Do your students feel respected, valued and included?

How often do you check on your students' progress and understanding?

How often do your students make decisions in the classroom? Are they given choices for their environment or the use of time?

When are your students comfortable with expressing themselves and when are they not?

How is your classroom arranged? Are the seating arrangements conducive for group work and classroom interaction?
